Locals and tourists alike are finding their way to the Hyatt Regency on Maui, in the beautiful resort area of Kaanapali to experience the new show Cirque Polynesia, and the growing crowds are giving a well deserved standing ovation to this colorful, professional cast of characters, who have now made Maui their home.

The web site is www.cirquepolynesia.com and it offers all the details about the VIP package, producers package, and the premiere seating. Opening night was June 2nd and will be permanently housed in the Monarchy room at the Hyatt, seating approximately 500 people.

The show opens with some comedy and audience participation, and from there, a magical journey leads the spectators, who are sitting on the edge of their seats, into witnessing an array of death defying feats that captured repeated awes and oohs from an appreciative audience.

Do you remember the popular show America's Got Talent, where a skimpy dressed woman was rapidly run through a hoop of glittery tinsel and came out the other side dressed in elaborate clothing, such as a long bridal gown, and no one in the audience has a clue how that had happened? Well, you get to see a version of that, along with death defying acrobatics and an array of amazing feats of balance and artistry, with a cast of a dozen internationally renowned performers.

The official web site offers a bio section so you can learn more about the cast & musicians with their professional background, some of them being fifth generation performers.

The live music provided by composer Daniel Cruces, and his partner Diane Rubio is powerful, sensual, and as diverse as the cast and performances.

The show is sheer magic, colorful artistry and well worth the price of admission.
